

THE DIANE MORGAN GROUP

FUTURE 4 TEENS

Dr. Brandi Pritchett-Johnson (commonly referred to as Dr. Brandi) is a licensed psychologist, wife, mother, educator, trainer/speaker, and more. She is the Owner of The Diane Morgan Group, a therapy and consulting firm that specializes in intergenerational family and racial/cultural trauma. The Diane Morgan Group provides therapy/counseling and therapeutic retreats to men, women, college populations, and teenagers. The Diane Morgan Group provides culturally responsive consultation and training services to academic institutions, corporations, and the non-profit sector.

Dr. Brandi also serves as the Founder/CEO of Future 4 Teens (F4T), a non-profit organization with a commitment to change-the-game of mental health for youth. The F4T purpose is to heal the brokenhearted by providing customized, fun, and affordable therapeutic services. Through her most recent professional role as an Assistant Professor/Director of Clinical Training in Wayne State University's Counseling Psychology program; Dr. Brandi is committed to educating and training the next generation of mental health providers.

Dr. Brandi has worked at the University of Florida, Ohio University, Western Michigan University, and Kalamazoo College in a variety of roles. She brings a wealth of experience and innovation from her work in the K-12 Public School System, non-profit sector, long term care industry, and community mental health settings. Her areas of expertise include; individual and group therapy, training and supervision, organizational consultation and program development, and she is a dynamic and attentive public speaker. Her areas of specialty include; identity development, socioemotional development, intergenerational trauma, grief & loss/bereavement, familial systems, and social justice.

Dr. Brandi received her undergraduate degree from Clark Atlanta University and her masters and doctorate in Counseling Psychology from Western Michigan University. She served as a guest lecturer for the Aurora Girls School in Soweto, South Africa. Considered an "expert", Dr. Brandi has been featured on TVOne's For My Man as well as BAM! Radio. She has been recognized by University of Michigan as an Emerging Diversity Scholar and featured in Detroit's own MetroParent magazine as well as a guest author for BlackDoctor.org. Dr. Brandi is a former editorial board member for The Counseling Psychologist, the premier journal for the field of psychology and most recently accepted the invitation to serve as Member-at-Large for American Psychological Association's Society for the Psychological Study of Race, Ethnicity, and Culture (Division 45). If you are in the metro Detroit area you may have heard Dr. Brandi on WRCJ 90.9 FM Need to Talk Radio (4th Wed. – 7pm) or as the Resident Counselor on a youth-lead radio show, Can you Relate (2nd Wed – 7 pm).

She is married to Dr. Joe Johnson and truly enjoys raising their two sons, Joe and Carter.
